Abstract. This paper describes the procedure of anisotropic mesh generation on 3D parametrical surfaces. A new technique of incorporating metric into the Delaunay triangulation algorithm is presented, using coordinate transformation. The concept of a metric transformation matrix is introduced along with the associated operations on this metric form.